ACTIVITIES DONE IN OCTOBER, 2020

ENGLISH WEEK ACTIVITIES:

Following the tradition, we celebrated the English Week with myriad of activities like previous years. It was an exhilarating and enriching experience for students.

- A. We started with discussing about a famous Indian children author, R. K. Narayan. Talked about how his pieces of writing are relevant for all age groups by making the plot interlaced with political activities in a very subtle style. His biography with major works was introduced to the kids.
- B. A cinematic adaptation of a story of 'Malgudi Days' was shown and discussed. Students enthusiastically gave inputs and gained a lot information on how to analyse a creative text with some basic artistic lenses.

On the third day, Parsody- the study of a literary technique of meter, intonation, and rhythm of a poetic work was discussed. More stressed was laid on informing about syllables- stressed and unstressed, and how internal rhyme is created through the knowledge of meters. It was taught to enlighten them about the history of poetry and to improve their comprehension and composition.

D. It was followed by Poetry Slam wherein students composed purging their innermost emotions. Came out to be a successful and interesting activity. Following are the self composed by students.

Unchained Emotions

I like to walk in the rain,
not because it hides my tears
or my pain.
I like the way it gently touches my skin,
sending sensation right up to the spleen.
The colours of trees and flowers stand out more against the grey of the sky,
looking at the old bench, I sigh.
The old bench jogs my memory,
memory of us weathering the storms.
I have found my way back to the old bench,
for peace and solace.
My heart says mom still sits here on the edge
seeing the flowers blossom,
and watching the birds fledge.

Self-Composed

Tia have a guinea pig named Kuku,
who knows nothing other than doing down.
She keeps him in her heart even in the night.
But he scores her too much with his greedy
bite.

Tia do so much for him
but what she gets in return is quite dim.
She brings her cucumber, grass everything
she wants in a day.
But what he do is hitch it and runs away.

Tia is wilted as an unwatered plant.
What she decides to do is chant.
She took the essential from her neighbour's aunt.
She advises her, "child! it's scart."
She replies, "It can't"

she shouts aloud, "Petrificus Totalus!"
Kuku got paralyzed under that curse.
It took hours to him to recover.
Once, recovered, he literally hid under the cover.

She then said, "Wingardium Leviosa!"
He turned into a dragon emitting fire.
Sometimes he turned into an eagle
that could be heard.

she did every single thing to bring
herself close to him.
But the pig didn't had the much courage in him.
Tia gave up upon her self.
Kuku accompanied him self.

she gave up hope that Kuku would ever be a friend to her.
Kuku ran by himself into her shoulder and said "I will be here with you till you get older."
Kuku retained the spells power
and stay with happily as far.
